PUBLIC AUCTION.
To be sold, at public auction, at Northumberland court house, in the county of Northumberland, and state of Virginia, on TUESDAY, the fifth day of September next, at eleven o'clock, in the forenoon, Five contiguous Plantations, Amounting together to about 2700 Acres, SITUATE on the river Potomac, and within about three miles of the courthouse. These estates formerly belonged to Presley Thornton, Esq. and are the same on which he lived. They have never been seen by either of the subscribers; but it is understood, that about 1700 acres of them are as valuable low grounds as any on the river, and a considerable part thereof heavily timbered.
The uplands consist of about 1000 acres, and the whole is well calculated for the production of corn, wheat, tobacco, timothy, and small grain of all kinds, in great abundance. The waters are said to abound with excellent fish, oysters, and wild fowl. The water carriage is easy and convenient to Norfolk, Battimore, Alexandria, and the city of Washington; and as these estates possess several good mill seats, with an abundance of water, and a plentiful supply of timber, they must be very valuable.

The premises will be shewn to persons inclining to purchase, by Col. James Moore, who lives on them, or by Samuel Blackwell, Esq. who lives near to them; and the terms of payment may be known a sufficient time before the sale, by applying to either of them, or to the subscriber in the city of Philadelphia.

FROM THE EVENING POST.

The Meadow Moss and Sweet Briar.

Where, 'neath the sweet Briar, lowly laid, His battles, life and glories done;
Where the green Moss conceals his head, On* Haups cold bosom sleeps her son†

There, through the wild, by Fancy led,
What time, in crimson, glow'd the west, In lonely mood, I careless stray'd, Nor knew what sacred ground I press'd.

Nor yet had known the hallow'd spot Where rests the great, the good, the brave;
Had not the flower, that mourns his lot, Betray'd the warrior's moss-grown grave.†

Its sigh, with fragrance, bless'd the hour,
And taught my footsteps where to stray;
Like modest merit blush'd the flower,
At an intruder's bold survey.

With Pity warm, I thoughtless cried "Ah! luckless flower, to bloom unseen, Mid rocks, and wood and desarts wide,
In vain thy sweets—thy beauties vain.

Soft as the sigh of Pity's breath, Sweet as the ring-dove's moaning note;
A silver voice rose from the heath, And, o'er the moss-turf, seem'd to float.

"Do not reproach, nor yet disdain The simple flower's humble lot; Creative wisdom, not in vain, That made the Palace, made the cot.

"Not oh! insult, with Pity's tear, Whom Fate, in lowly life, hath plac'd; For she hath, sometimes, even there,
The virtuous mind, with honors grac'd.

"Not Europe's clime—not Persia's vales, In rank can, with this flower, contend; Nor yet Arabia's spicy gales, When to its bosom, zephyr's bend.

"Columbia's Genius loved the flower; To shade the form, she loved so well.

"What tho' it bind no blood-strained brow, What tho' it deck no lady fair, Yet where misfortunes son lies low,
Is heard its sigh—is seen its tear.

BOTANICUS.

* Mount Hope, the residence of King Philip.
† King Philip, an Indian Sachem.
‡ His savage foe denied him a grave.

Some circumstances relative to Merino Sheep, chiefly collected from the Spanish Shepherds, who attended those of the Flock of Paular, lately presented to the king of G. Britain by the government of Spain; with particulars respecting that great national acquisition; and also respecting the Sheep of the Flock of Negrete, imported from Spain by his majesty, in the year 1791.

Every sheep is well acquainted with the situation of the Dehesa, to which its subdivision belongs, and will at the end of the journey go straight to it, without the guidance of the shepherds; here the flock grazes all the day under the eyes of the attendants; when the evening comes on the sheep are collected together, and they soon lay down to rest; the shepherds and the dogs then lay down on the ground round the flock and sleep, as they term it, under the stars, or in huts that afford little shelter from inclement weather; and this is their custom all the year, except that each is allowed in his turn, an absence of about a month, which he spends with his family; and it is remarkable that the families of these shepherds reside entirely in Leon.

The shepherds who came with his majesty's flock, were questioned on the subject of giving salt to their sheep; they declared that it was only done in the hottest season of the year, when the sheep are on the mountains; that in September it is left off; and that they dare not give salt to ewes forward with lamb, being of opinion that it causes abortion.

It is scarcely credible, though it appears on the best authority to be true, that under the operation of the laws of the Mesta, which confide the care of the sheep to the management of the shepherds, without admitting any interference on the part of the proprietor, no profit of the flock comes to the hands of the owner, except what is derived from the wool; the carcasses of the culled sheep are consumed by the shepherds,* and it does not appear that any account is rendered by them to their employers, of the value of the skins, the tallow, &c; the profit derived by a proprietor from a flock, is estimated on an average at about one shilling a head, and the produce of a capital vested in a flock is said to fluctuate between five and ten per cent.

The sheep are always low kept. It is the business of each Mayoral, to increase his flock to as large a number as the land allotted to it can possibly maintain; when it has arrived at that pitch, all further increase is useless, as there is no sale for these sheep, unless some neighbors flock has been reduced by mortality below its proper number; the most of the lambs are therefore every year killed as soon as they are yeaned, and each of those preserved is made to suck two or three ewes; the shepherds say, that the wool of an ewe that brings up her lamb without assistance is reduced in its value.

At shearing time the shepherds, shear-ers, washers, and a multitude of unnecessary attendants, are fed upon the flesh of the culled sheep; and it seems that the consumption occasioned by this season of feasting, is sufficient to devour the whole of the sheep that are draughted from the flock.— Mutton in Spain is not a favorite food; in truth, it is not in that country prepared for the palate as it is in this; we have our lamb-fairs, our hog-fairs, our shearing-fairs, our fairs for culls, and our markets for fat sheep, where the mutton, having passed through these different stages of preparation, each under the care of men, whose soil and whose skill is best suited to the part they have been taught by their interest to assign to themselves, is offered for sale, and if fat and good, it seldom fails to command a price by the pound, from 5 to 10 per cent. dearer than that of beef. In Spain, they have no such sheep-fairs calculated to sub-divide the education of each animal, by making it pass through many hands, as works of art do in a manufacturing concern, and they have not any fat sheep markets that at all resemble ours; the low state of grazing of Spain ought not therefore to be wondered at, nor the poverty of the Spanish farmers; they till a soil sufficiently productive by nature, but are robbed of the reward due to the occupier, by the consumption, and the benefit of an extensive consumption; till the manufacturing and mercantile parts of a community become opulent enough to pay liberal prices, the agricultural part of it cannot grow rich by selling.

* The shepherds on discovering the drift of the questions put to them on this head, said that in settling the wages of the shearers and washers at the Esquileo, allowance is made for the mutton with which they are fed.

DEBATES FOR THE LADIES.

Query—Which is placed in the most unpleasant situation—The man who marries a second wife with the children of the first grown-up—the woman married under such circumstances—or the children who are thus supplanted in their father's affection?

MR. MEANWELL.

In discussing this interesting question, it is necessary, in the first place, to fix a de-terminate age for the parties concerned, especially the children, who must be more or less affected, according to that circumstance, if they are of very tender years, it is probable that a father's second choice may prove advantageous to them, as a woman of a good disposition and refined manners may have the power to act by them with a degree of steady and judicious conduct, in a manner more to their benefit, than the partial indulgence of their natural parent might permit. In this case, it is then to one, but the mother-in-law has the most unpleasant situation. Blind to the follies of his own offspring, and perhaps tenderly attached to the memory of his former wife, the husband thinks her correction of their little follies too severe, and mixed with a certain indefinable sensation of jealousy—the children too, perceiving the bent of their father's idea, repay her solicitous cares with discontent or obstinacy; they conceive that she exercises her prerogative unjustly, and from the illiberal opinions generally entertained against step-mothers, suspect her of a greater portion of malice and ill-will towards them than her conduct merits. It is these mistaken notions which create the unhappy divisions in families, and render the situation of a mother-in-law the most irksome, to a woman of feeling.

MR. CAVIL.

The arguments just advanced by our friend Meanwell, have certainly truth to recommend them; but I am, nevertheless, inclined to believe, that there are more instances of misconduct on the woman's side, than he seems willing to allow. For my own part I had frequent opportunities of observing, that the man who marries a second time, having already a young family, is likely to repent of his imprudence. The wife, if old, is unwilling to be burthened with the charge of another woman's children, especially if she never knew herself the tender feelings of maternal love; she makes no allowance for the faults of youth —they interrupt her domestic occupations, and she cannot but behold, with a degree of envy, their father's affection for them—he is therefore incessantly tormented with complaints of their indiscretion, rudeness, or carelessness. Her temper is perhaps avaricious, and, consequently, the expences of their education and maintenance is considered as a diminution of her property; she conceives that they do not treat her with sufficient respect, and, if the father interferes, his children consider his affection alienated from them; and hatred against the woman who has thus robbed them of a parent's indulgence, insensibly gives rise to a thousand petty disturbances. If the mother-in-law happens to be young, the case is still worse; a second family is likely to spring up, and their little patrimony is waded by these additional claimants. Endless strife and cavillings ensue between the children, each jealous of a parent's regard, and each considering the other as one in the way. What must be the feelings of a father under such circumstances? His life is a scene of perpetual irritation and anxiety, and it cannot be doubted but he is infinitely the most to be pitied in the family.

MR. ELIOT.

Before I express my opinion on either side, I will venture to lay the case down in a different light. I will suppose the children to have attained the age of discretion before their father makes a second choice.
I will imagine them living in competence and harmony together, tenderly attached to their father, and equally so to the memory of their mother—yet, on a sudden, the scene is changed, a new member is introduced—let her be endowed with various amiable qualities, yet shall we find that the children are injured, and their home rendered uncomfortable to them. The boys no longer find a companion in their remaining parent; his attention is engrossed by a new object, his confidence is gradually withdrawn, and the remonstrances of his sons, however gentle, appears disobedient and impertinent. The girls, accustomed to regulate the household concerns, and consult with their father on every domestic arrangement, find the authority usurped by a stranger, and themselves superseded in their father's affection; their various inclinations are no longer consulted; it is not the wishes of his children, but of his wife, that must be considered; the servants must obey her commands, and the daughters seem reduced to mere domestics. Not this all; the unwelcome addition of a new family, perhaps, renders it necessary for them to quit the paternal roof, and seek its means abroad of a genteel maintenance, exposed to various ills, which they had never known but for their fathers indiscretion. They find themselves cut off from all their expectations, are alienated from their father's thoughts; and no longer solicitous to please, suffer themselves to deviate from the path of rectitude, which they would otherwise never have quitted.

CAPTAIN RATTLE.

From what has been already advanced, it appears to me that a man who has a family by his first wife, is to be deemed imprudent if he ventures to take a second; yet, I cannot but think the argument absurd, and contrary to every liberal sentiment. It is natural to suppose, that he who has once been happy in the married state, must feel a painful vacuum in his heart, when deprived of the object of his first affection; and although he may have children capable of regulating and superintending his domestic concerns, they can never supply to him the companion he has lost. His children, when grown up, will most likely form other connections, which must separate them from him, and, in his declining years, he will be deprived of solace, support, and domestic comfort.— While their youthful years demand the care of a female in various little particulars, which a father however beloved or indulgent, cannot supply: he conceives that he does them an essential service in supplying them with a second mother; and surely he is justified, if he selects a woman who is too respectable to disgrace him, and too prudent to set them a bad example; and even though, in some particulars, it may not altogether turn out to his most sanguine wishes, they must be unfeeling children who, on that score, neglect their duty, and embitter the hours of a parent with en-murmurings or useless repining. Were prejudices set aside, it would, I think, be found that nine families in ten might live in harmony together, even under a mother-in-law; and I know many private instances in which a second wife has both merited and obtained the love of her husband's children.

Yet, as things are, and taking every circumstance into consideration, I am led to conclude that, in cases of a second marriage, the husband is the most miserable, the most most injured, and the children most injured. However, as we cannot make any positive conclusion on a subject of such delicate and intricate nature, I can only hope that our discreet choice—some unmarried female from uniting herself with a father's family—and some children from treating him with disrespect and injustice, a woman, who has perhaps, in no other way transgressed against them than in consenting to become the wife of their father.

Adjourned for consideration.

FROM THE N. Y. EVENING POST.

Cursory reflections on the present state of things.

"Populus nullis legibus tenebatur," has been the reproach cast upon popular governments, by all men who have preferred the form of a different principle. They admit the beauty of the republican theory, but they deny the practicability of these schemes of equality, and contend that such is the force of men's passions, that they will not consent to those limits and restraints upon their powers, without which there is no adequate security against the violence and injustice of faction.

In nothing were the ancient free governments more defective, than the manner in which they deliberated and decided upon their foreign affairs. This being done in occasional and therefore intemperate as-semblies of the people, it was there that the impatience of popular preference, the immoderate desire of influence, the inordinant love of power, and the corrupt subserviency to foreign states, found a fit opportunity to display their counterfeit zeal for the public welfare. It was there that the demagogues, the declaimers, bribed by pension, agitated, inflamed, and misled the Craonian states. It was there that Philocrators corruptly exerted their power, and prepared their country to receive the yoke of a master.

This experience of former times, and of a people enamored of freedom, was well understood, and maturely considered by persons who formed our national constitution; a great and most important point of difference between which and that of the ancient free governments, is found in the structure of the executive power. Instead of referring every subject to the tumultuous assemblies of the people, where passion, not reason, becomes the judge, whatever concerns the foreign affairs of the U. States is wisely entrusted to the executive power of the nation; a power, in the composition of which the people have a full and exclusive influence and which therefore acting for and for the people; deciding in their behalf and for their benefit, must bind them as fully as if such acts had been sanctioned by the whole body of the people. We do not contend, contrary to our conviction, that the people may not at any time express their opinion, concerning the administration of public affairs; but as the entire subject of foreign negotiation is confided to the executive power, and as such negotiation, according to the usage and interest of nations, is so conducted that little information concerning its matter and progress is suffered to transpire; it must be evident, that on this branch of administration, more than on any other, the people are the least informed and therefore the most incapable of expressing a sound and salutary opinion.

I am led to make these remarks by the intemperate zeal that has of a sudden burst forth among us, and by the re-opening of the democratic presses in every quarter, for the purpose of agitating the country and inflaming it against Great-Britain.

The object of the persons who directed these measures is as manifest as the noonday sun:—They were disappointed, mortified, and humbled at the prospect of a separately with Great-Britain. In their souls they cursed Mr. Madison and felt the bitterest regret that they had co-operated in his elevation. They never wished, that Great-Britain should do us justice; on the contrary, it was their anxious hope that she would continue to be provoked to do otherwise; the arrangement therefore, announce ed from Washington in April, added warm-wood and gall to their disappointment.

ow, when difficulties appear ed in giving effect to that arrangement, men rally and re-he stage; they struggle and revive and aggravate every ce of an irritating nature; they

With pleasure I do return my sincere thanks to the above named ladies, and many others who have favored me with their certificates and custom in the purchase of Yarwood's Patent Washing Machine. I find them still in great demand in this place, but finding a very great scarcity of plank to answer the purpose of making them here, I shall in a few days or weeks commence making them to the southward. But will endeavor to supply others at a short notice after my return. I have a few now made on hand, which can be had if applied for soon.

DIRECTIONS HOW TO USE
YARWOOD'S

Patent Washing Machine.

First fill the barrel half full of your finest cloths, then fill the bottom of the Reservoir with hot suds up to the side planks, turn the Crank backwards and forwards so as to make the cloths fall the hardest against the sides of the barrel for about twenty-five minutes, then use the same suds with a little more soap and hot water for the next finest cloths, until the suds are unfit for use, then second your cloths in the same way with boiling suds, after rubbing a little soap on the dirtiest parts of the cloths; then rinse them in the machine in warm or cold water.

Just Published,
FOR SALE BY R. GRAY,
A CELEBRATED ROMANCE ENTITLED ABAEELINO,
THE BRAVO OF VENICE.

Translated from the German, by M. G. Lewis, the well known author of the Castle Spectre, Monk, Adelgitha, &c. &c. Price, handsomely bound, one dollar—the English edition sold at one dollar seventy five cents. What black Musician conjures up this fiend? What, do you tremble, are ye all afraid? Alas, I blame ye not, for ye are mortal, and mortal eyes cannot endure the devil—Haunt, thou dreadful Minister of Hell.

RICHARD M. SCOTT.
In justice to this excellent Romance, we need only remark, that the Grand Dramatic piece, which for several seasons past drew such full houses to our theatre, is founded on the same subject, as translated by Dunlap; but the acknowledged superiority of Lewis's writings or translations in the Romance style, being so far superior to any other of our modern authors, leaves encomium unnecessary with the publishers.

NOTE. Five editions of this Romance were sold in a very short time, after publication in London—it is dedicated to the Earl of Moira, by Lewis.

The following highly valuable Medicines,

Dr. Jebb's Nature's Restorative

A BALSAMIC CORDIAL.

THIS cordial so justly celebrated throughout Great-Britain and the continent of Europe, for its superior efficacy in the curing all disorders excited by nervous irritability, as well as the complaints of complete debility, whether arising from irregularities of living long continued residence in warm climates imtemperate pursuits, or from excessive pleasure, or that destructive affection, the insatiable youth which brings on so prematurely the infirmities of old age.

In removing pulmonary affections, asthma and all disorders of the lungs, it is the most powerful remedy ever yet found, and the relief it has afforded even in the last stage of consumptions, is without a parallel; with regard to its efficacy in this baneful, and unfortunately the prevailing disorder in this country (consumption) its superiority is such as to have supplanted every other medicine.

Those who in advanced life feel the consequences of youthful excess, will find themselves restored to health and strength, and all those melancholy symptoms removed, which are the general effects of such causes.

In short, animated by the uniform success this invaluable cordial has experienced in Europe, the thousands it has renovated, when bending under the pressure of nervous, consumptive or hypochondriacal disorders (many tested proofs of which from eminently distinguished persons in this quarter of the globe, are now in the possession of the proprietor here, some few of which are herein published have determined the introduction of it into this continent, where its efficacies must soon become so prized as to make it considered a beneficent remedy not to be dispensed with by those who are anxious to preserve or acquire their health.

The chief ingredient of this cordial is a plant whose rare and precious salutary virtues were well known to the Arabians during the 8th and 9th centuries, when that people shone conspicuous over all the nations of the world for their learning and skill in eradicating baneful diseases incident to the human frame, renovating infirmity to vigor, and restoring the sickly to sound and rosy health, and which, as known at this time by their descendants, and used and experienced as the most sovereign remedy for decayed constitutions, and every species of nervous disorders. This celebrated restorative plant has also been highly estimated for ages past, amongst the most enlightened nations of Greece, and considered by those wise inhabitants as one of the first of their blessings.

This cordial is also rich and fine in flavor, most grateful to the palate, and the most enlivening to the spirits of any yet offered to the public.

ALSO,
Dr. Tiffot's celebrated Gout and Rheumatic Drops

(Price, Two Dollars per bottle.)

NOTHING is of more importance than the preservation of health—this common-laced remark however is too often forgotten whilst we are active and strong—and prevention of pain, which is superior to its cure, is not sufficiently attended to by any description of persons. Among those disorders which require the most early and unremitting efforts to eradicate and overcome, none have a stronger claim upon our notice than the Gout, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Weakness of the Joints, Sprains, Gleet, the Stone and Gravel, the Cramp and every species of Rheumatic Pains from whatever cause they may have originated—and hence every relief which can be administered is too valuable to be forgotten.—Those persons whose avocations peculiarly expose them to colds, &c. cannot be too anxious always to possess immediate aid. Sea-faring persons, travellers, &c. ought constantly to carry with them that medicine which will counteract the unpleasant effects of their perilous duties, and especially those pains to which their situation must expose them. To those who reside in or visit the West-Indies, and their warm climates, they will be found upon trial to convey the most lasting service and will gradually destroy all tendency to disease in the human frame, and preserve health and vigor. Although a great variety of prescriptions have been published to cure the disorders enumerated above, none has yet equalled the GOUT AND RHEUMATIC DROPS of Dr. TISSOT, which are celebrated throughout the European continent, and whose unbounded benefits are fully authenticated by certificates already published of gentlemen so well known in America, being of the first consequence in the state of Maryland: General Charles Ridgely, of Hampton; John Gibson, Esq. one of the directors of the Farmers' Bank of Maryland; John Macubbin, Esq. Mrs. Macubbin, his wife; and Mrs. Ryan, of Calton. Ample certificates and affidavits of the beneficial effects of these medicines may be seen by applying as above.

FOR SALE,

The following VALUABLE PROPERTY

A TRACT OF LAND,

CONTAINING 1600 acres, more or less, called and known by the name of Joe Marsh, lying within 12 miles of Washington, in the county of Frederick, in the State of Virginia. On about 900 acres of this tract there are several very well improved tenanted for life or lives, the balance in all incumbrance, including an excellent mill built with stone, the whole yielding an annual rent of about $800 dollars. This tract is very fertile, well watered, and all abundance of timber. It is generally hilly, but part of it is hilly and stony, and of lime stone. It will be laid off to suit purchasers.

Another tract, called Hollen Marsh, lying in the county of Westmoreland, containing about 2800 acres, bordering on river Potomac, adjoining the Stratford estate and the late residence of Richard Lee, esq. Chantilly. On the estate are a number of farms and tenants at will. Part of this tract is extremely fertile, and all of it is good. The lands generally are in that part of the country. The Marsh affords excellent for stock, and is happily situated for fowls of which that river abounds, and may be a desirable estate to any person who chooses to reside in that part of the country. It will however be laid off to suit purchasers. The above lands are held by deeds of purchase duly recorded in the general court.

Another tract containing 600 acres, lying in the county of Berkeley, joining the residence of Raleigh Coleman, esq. of which about 650 acres is leased for the balance of the life of an aged man, the remainder at will. This land is situated in the bend of the big bend of Potomac, and is on it. In point of fertility it is esteemed superior to none in that part of the state held by deed from James Marshall, esq.

Seven other tracts containing 1000 acres each, adjoining each other in the county of Mason, within a few miles of Ohio, between the two Kanawha's on the waters of Sandy Creek, which runs through considerable part of it. It adjoins the land of general Washington, and the late Benjamin Harrison, jun. esq. A large portion of it is rich bottom and the upland of very good quality. It is held under the original patent by deeds duly recorded in the general court.

Five full & complete Shares in the Dismal Swamp Company.

Upwards of 16,000 acres of Lands, being very old military rights, in the states of Ohio, Kentucky and the Indiana territory, chiefly patented in my name and ready to be shewn.

A more particular description of the foregoing property may be seen by applying to Mr. Thomas Taylor, of Richmond, who is authorized to make contracts, or to mortgage in Alexandria. The titles are all undoubted and the terms proposed are, one fourth cash at the time of conveyance, the balance in three instalments, the last two to be interest from the date. Any species of public stock and of the different Banks and the United States of Insurance Companies—the Potomac Bridge and Turnpike Companies will be received in payment according to their fair value. Ground rents in the city of Richmond and town of Alexandria, Houses and Lots, will likewise be received in payment according to such rates as may be agreed upon.

THE subscriber offers for sale the property on Fairfax-street, in Alexandria, occupied by Mrs. S. Nickolls. The property is worth four hundred dollars, and has been assessed at two hundred dollars, and have, year by year, assessed it at this sum; but the subscriber now offers it for sale at the assessed value.

He also offers for sale, The vacant Lots on Fairfax and Prince streets. Assessors have said that these are worth three thousand two hundred dollars per acre, and have assessed them at that rate; but the subscriber will take less than the half of that sum per acre.

He would gladly sell all his property in the Mall—his Houses on King-street, Royal-street—his Houses on the same street near Washington-street—his ground on any other property he has in Alexandria on a credit of 6, 12, and 18 months, to Cuthbert Powell.

Leesburg, March 30.
